Dear Deputy Tully,

The Health Service Executive has been requested to reply directly to you in the context of the following parliamentary question, which was submitted to this department for response.

PQ: 27890/24

To ask the Minister for Children; Equality; Disability; Integration and Youth if he will clarify the official policy regarding reimbursement for private assessment of need by the HSE with regard to families; the details of any recorded instances of reimbursement to families for private assessment of need despite the stated policy; the criteria and process by which it is determined if individuals are to be eligible for reimbursement; the number of private assessments that have been reimbursed in each of the past five years, in accordance with legal and regulatory requirements, in tabular form.

HSE Response

Targeted Initiative focused on long waiting families

A new waiting list initiative, launched in June 2024, will target those families waiting longest for AONs, with the HSE reimbursing clinicians directly through the procurement of capacity from approved private providers. This provides a more equitable and fair approach rather than reimbursement of parents directly.

All aspects of the Assessment of Need process must be operated within the AON legislation, the HSE SOP and the iHIQA standards.

In line with appropriate procurement procedures, Garda vetting and due diligence practice, private providers are contracted by the HSE to provide assessments and / or interventions.

The HSE must ensure that the contracted providers are appropriately qualified and that any assessments or interventions are provided in line with the legislation, HSE SOP and the iHIQA standards.

Some families source private assessments to facilitate access to educational supports such as special schools or classes. In many cases, these are unidisciplinary assessments which are usually accepted in the education sector. In general, HSE or HSE funded services, in line with best practice guidelines, use a multidisciplinary approach to assessment, specifically to ASD assessment. In these circumstances, while HSE services may take cognisance of any unidisciplinary reports that may be available, they will undertake a multidisciplinary assessment where appropriate, to confirm a diagnosis and to determine the necessary interventions.

The HSE does not fund or reimburse any fees paid to private practitioners in any of the health service areas where assessments, interventions or therapies have been commissioned by the service user or their family directly.

The HSE has no mandate or financial mechanism to reimburse fees paid by families directly to private agencies for health services. If a parent or guardian has identified a private provider or assessor willing to carry out an Assessment on their child, they can discuss this with HSE representatives. If the provider has the appropriate qualifications and meets the HSE's criteria in relation to the relevant standards as outlined above, then they may be contracted to undertake assessments. The HSE will pay the provider/assessor directly for any assessment.

The HSE is continuing to identify private providers/assessors who have the capacity to complete assessments, so that we can outsource this work to help reduce waiting list times.

Yours Sincerely,

Bernard O'Regan
Assistant National Director
National Disability Team
